

SEABIRD COLONY PROTECTION PROGRAM OUTREACH INTERNSHIP

DO YOU WANT TO HELP BRING AN IMPORTANT CONSERVATION MESSAGE TO LOCAL COASTAL USERS?

Gulf of the Farallones National Marine Sanctuary's Seabird Colony Protection Program is seeking motivated interns to assist in staffing our 2008 outreach events. These events specifically target boaters and pilots with information about how they can help reduce disturbance to sensitive breeding seabirds and marine mammals along our coast. Often we are the only conservation-based group at these mainly consumer-based events. This non-paid internship is a challenging and extraordinary opportunity to work with Sanctuary staff while learning more about marine conservation, responsible wildlife viewing, and marine policy.

WE SEEK:

Positive, outgoing, dynamic interns who must be ready to talk, meet new people, and share this important message.

Interns will need to attend a one-hour orientation meeting, attend one outreach training event and commit to 5 days over the 2008 outreach season.
